Hon. L. D. Campbell, of Ohio.

This talented and estimable gentleman is well known here in Washington as a firm, consistent, and inflexible WHIG: and it will appear strange to all who know him that a vindication of his character in this particular could ever have been made necessary. Yet he is not tardy in his own defence, as the following letter will abundantly prove:

To the Editors of the Tribune :

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Washington, July 2, 1852. DEAR SIES: If my position in politics is a mat-ter of any interest either to the readers of the Tribune or of the Post, it is but fair that it should be correctly stated. For the last seven years Gen. Scott has been my first choice for the Presidency. I had the honor of presenting his name to th Philadelphia Convention of 1848, and of joining with the Obio delegation in voting for him first, last, and all the time. Since then, I have joined with the Whigs of my district and State in declaring, on all proper occasions, that he was our first choice; and, as evidence of our sincerity and fidelity, we intend to give him the electoral vote of Your intimation that I voted for Van Buren is unjust, because I have never voted anything but a Whig ticket, and have probably devoted as much time and labor against Mr. V. B.'s pretensions as any man of my age in America. I have never been a candidate, except when regularly made so by the nomination of the Whig party That the Freesoilers have voted for me, is true and I always make my grateful acknowledgments to them for their confidence. I regard the "platform" which Gen. Scott has

by a service of near half a century, in defending the Union, the constitution, the laws, the country, and the whole country, without regard to sectional parties or sectional interests, remable and meritorious than any which politiional parties or sectional interests, as more cians may have constructed. It is good enough

I deny the right of the Post or the Tribune, under such circumstances, to assign to me the equivocal position of a "bolter." I am for Scott and Graham, and my humble services are dedi-

Yours, truly, L. D. CAMPBELL. Mr. Campbell is now about forty-one years old, and few men of his age have had a more ample or useful experience in the political struggles of his State and of the country. At the early age of twenty (we are informed by a friend near us, who has known him long and well) he was the editor of a Whig paper in his native county in Ohio, when that county gave a Jackson majority of three thousand votes! In every contest since that date he has borne an active part on behalf of the Whig party, and never voted any other than the Whig ticket. The Freesoilers of his district have ever manifested a generous confidence in his ability and integrity, and have supported him whenever a candidate for office, notwithstanding his uncompromising Whig position, and the fact that he has always been presented as the nomince of Whig conventions!

That Mr. Campbell is the "original Scott man of Ohio" is both here and in that State a trite and common saying. As he himself once exclaimed, when there were few around him to take peated refusal to appropriate a single dollar for up the cry, "General Scott was defending his country at the cannon's mouth when I was a helpless infant on the Western frontier, and my father far away from his home an humbler soldier in that holy cause; and I shall never be absent when his friends are rallied to his support in any struggle!" Mr. Campbell made no vain promise. He has stood forth a bold, a fearless, an able, and an eloquent champion of the gallant hero in many an arena, and his influence is felt and acknowledged wherever the faithful and devoted friends of Scott and the Whig cause are known. The gratifying reward of beholding the success of his labors yet awaits him, and honors are before him that even misrepresentation cannot tarnish or impair.

Congress To-Day.

SENATE. - Mr. BOBLAND, by leave, made a perional explanation, correcting some errors in calculations contained in a speech made by him on the 27th of May last, upon the subject of expendtures by the government.

Debate ensued upon a motion by Mr. Davis to ostpone the private calendar and take up the bill to amend the act providing for the better security of the lives of passengers on vessels propelled in whole or in part by steam. The motion was agreed to, and the bill taken up.

House of Representatives .- The House took up and considered the bill to amend the law of March 3, 1851, reducing and modifying the rates of postage, with a view to simplify the rates now charged on printed matter. The second only was reached by the time the morning hour expired.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of he Whole on the state of the Union on the deficiency bill.

The Collins line amendment was discussed, but not disposed of up to the period of our going to

Scott's Prospects in Indiana. In 1848 General Cass received in Indians

74.745 votes. General Taylor received 69.907 votes, and Mr. Van Buren 8,100. Cass over Taylor, 4,836; Taylor and Van Buren over Cass, 3.262.

The Freesoil votes (Van Buren's) were principally composed of Whigs who refused to vote for General Taylor because he was a Southern man and a slaveholder. The Freesoil Democrats had of course no such objection to their candidate. and voted for him. In the 10th district Cass received 7,634, Taylor 6,182, and Van Buren 1,615. This was, perhaps, the strongest Freesoil district in the State. In 1851 the race for Congress in this district was between Brenton (Whig) and Borden, (Democrat.) Brenton received 8,828 votes, and Borden 8,446, which was a Whig gain over Taylor, as between Taylor and Cass, of 1,829 votes: showing that the Freesoil votes were given to Brenton, the Whig candidate—there being no Freesoil organization. Taking the 10th district as a sample, no further figuring is necessary to show that in the absence of a third party organization, all other questions aside, General Scott will carry the State by a handsome majority. There were ten districts in the State, and the gain in one district was 1,829; suppose the average gain to be at one-fourth the ratio of the gain in the 10th district, and Scott has a majority of 4,575 in the State.

But supose there should be a Freesoil candidate in '52: will General Scott be affected in like manner as General Taylor? Without arguing the point, we answer, simply, we think not-General Scott being neither from an extreme Southern State, (as was General Taylor,) nor a slaveholder.

Without relying upon this view of the case, we think we can show clearly that, independent of the question of third-partyism, General Scott possesses an advantage over General Taylor which insures him the vote of the State. No on at all acquainted with the campaign of 1848, in that State, will deny that, but for the hue-andcry raised all over the State against Gen. Taylor by the Democracy (and, to the dishonor of Gen. Lane be it told, he loaned himself to the service, and gave currency to the statements) in relation to his official report of the battle of Buena Vista, he would have received the electoral vote by a handsome majority. General Scott will have no such disadvantage to contend with, but on the contrary he will receive the votes of hundreds of his early companions in arms, who are scattered all over the country, regardless of party ties or party drill.

And again, in 1848, Gen. Taylor had to contend against an acknowledged statesman, and a man who, at least, ought to have some sympathy for the Western interests. Gen. Scott is opposed by a man who is without distinction as a general or as a statesman, and whose hostility to the West has been manifested, on every occasion whe he had an opportunity to manifest it, by his rethe improvement of their rivers and harbors and for the protection of their lives and fortunes.

The Alexandria Gazette says of this gentleman that "the key to his whole position is to be found in this single sentence in his speech, 'I did not intend to support Gen. Scott IN ANY EVENT. After that declaration, he might have saved himself the trouble of making his speech. He long ago determined to bolt from the Whig party; and all the elaborate wire-drawings of the speech, and the quibblings of the manifesto, are afterthoughts to excuse his desertion from his party and his cause."

Mr. Toomba's Anti-Scott Speech.

"Ion" this morning says, that Mr. Seward and Mr. Thaddeus Stevens, it is said, show their high estimate of Mr. Toombs's speech by ordering some hundred thousand copies of it for circulation in New York, and Pennsylvania, and Ohio. They and all the Freesoil Whigs accept for Gen. Scott the position that Mr. Toomba gives him.

Mr. Webster at Boston.

Mr. Webster was expected to arrive at Boston to-day, and the most extensive preparations have been made for a public reception. There was to be an immense civic procession of his friends, all manner of business to be suspended after 12 o'clock. Hon. Rufus Choate is to deliver the address of welcome.

"I know my price: I'm worth no less a place."-- Ingo A despatch from Charleston, dated the 7th

"The Savannah Republican publishes a letter from Charles T. Jackson, declining to suppore either the Whig or Democratic Presidential nominees. The Republican thinks that Gen. Scott cannot get an electoral ticket in Georgia without the aid of Mr. Jackson, and that, as the Union Democrats will certainly have a ticket of their own, the Whigs can then decide whether to support it or nominate another ticket of their own. "The Hon. Alexander H. Stephens published a letter in the Augusta papers recommending nomination of an independent Union ticket."

A frisky politician is seldom refused by any party; and seven, nine, eleven, or more of them are generally regarded as quite desirable. Know ing this, and knowing also that a politician is all the more valuable for having a good catalogue of voters in his train, we must not wonder at the course of any of the leaders, plotters, and schemers. But as American voters generally are not often willing to be "led by the nose as asses are," we shall doubt for the present that the men of Georgia can be prevented from voting for the nominees of the two Conventions. While a contest is waging between two great national parties, it appears to us altogether impossible that a few party leaders, however able and eloquent, can so flatter and tickle the vanity of that great and intelligent State as to induce its people to stand off with folded arms, heedless of the grand result!

There has been a time in which the whole batch of would-be leaders failed there in a similar attempt; and unless the State has been drugged by some huge opiate, or has become spell-bound through some magic influence, another failure is close at hand. If Scott and Graham are not worthy of the vote of Georgia, Pierce and King are; and the choice lies between these two tickets. If the people do not go into the contest hand to hand for these candidates. and throw their jugglers, and tricksters, and balances of power, sky-high, we have never been more completely deceived. It was thus they acted in 40, and in twelve years we trust they have not degenerated into the tools and playthings of a few beruffled and befrilled transcendental politi-

Out of their Own Mouths!

The Louisville Democrat is now among the violent opponents of Gen. Scott; but the Journal quotes very aptly from its columns of a former date. On the 17th of May, 1847, it said:

"The history of the battle of Cerro Gordo was contained in Gen. Scott's order before its com-mencement. He pointed out the time and place for the action of each division of the army with the same coolness and precision that be would have employed in writing the programme of a civil procession. In conclusion, he adds the important information that the army would proceed on and not return to the camp. It was to be only a day's march up a hill. There were some incidents not in the order: Scott did not say that two captains should eat up Santa Anna's dinner, and drink up his wine."

On the 25th of October, 1847, long after the battle of Molino del Rey, and all the other battles in Mexico, the Democrat said:

"General Scott has earned for himself a name and fame which will throw even envy into the shade. The man who can lead an army of a few thousands through the heart of an enemy's country-through towns and cities containing hundreds of thousands—who can overcome obstacles, of nature and art, of the most formidable character-who can, with his little band, by his military skill and combinations, move through a forest of fortifications, defended by the troops of a nation chosen to defend their capital, in a city of two hundred thousand inhabitants, may well claim the laurels of the first general of the age. Nor will it detract from his merits, that his skill in planning was aided by the best of counsellors, and his energy in execution by the most heroic officers and soldiers. To lead such an army is a high honor; but to be able to develop the vast resources of skill and valor which such an army contains, in the accomplishment of such unrivalled results, is glory enough to gratify the loftiest military ambition. In the achievements of our arms, the commanding general, as he has the chief responsibility, may claim the chief

This is alike truthful and beautiful. What new evidence can the editor of the Democrat have received to induce a change in his opinions? Or, if he has not changed them, how can he oppose such a man, and that, too, by concurring in and circulating the slanders that are daily mul-

The Loaves and the Fishes of the Democratic Faith.

"X," in the Baltimore Sun this morning, says : "The Democratic caucus to be held to-night will, in all probability, decide the matter of the public printing. I doubt much whether any provision will be made for Mr. Forsyth, as editor of the Union, although he claims that the Southern ultras, with Mr. Soulé at their head, have nominated Gen. Pierce; or, to use the words of the man, that Gen. Pierce is the creation of the State Rights men.

"Just let the central organ of the Democratic party, in Washington, endorse such a statement, and the preux chevaliers that started Gen. Pierce will have to elect him too-all solitary and alone. No white man of the North is to be driven. It is one thing to catch the hungry politician, thirsting other to catch the after public plunder, and ar people. Public opinion in the North is made upwards, not downwards, as in the Southern States.

Can it be that our Democratic friends will quarrel about the plunder before the prize is caught? This will be remarkable.

It was once observed to us by a clergyman, that if a man desired to have a bad character, he had only to become a candidate for public favor; if a good one, to lie down and die. And the re mark was true. When the lamented Henry Clay was a candidate for the Presidency, the vilest slanders were published against his reputation. He was charged, among other things, with having made a corrupt bargain with Mr. Adams for the appointment of Secretary of State; and this gross libel on his character was circulated from high sources, and reiterated by menials in every rection, until it was believed by thousands. Clay is now dead, and the same individuals who assisted to vilify him whilst living are now shedding tears over his grave, and extolling him as among the purest statesmen that our country ever produced—a truth which is now universally

General Scott has, in like manner, been considered by the American people and by the world as one of the most skilful and successful generals of the age, possessing undoubted courage and unsuspected patriotism. Nominated by the Whig party as their candidate for President, it is now discovered that he is a coward, a Freesoiler, Abolitionist, &c., and we presume that, before the day of election, he will be portrayed as a monster of inhumanity and iniquity. None but the most ignorant will believe these charges and those who utter them, were General Scott to die to-morrow, would unite in paying the highest honors to his memory .- Baltimore Clipper.

The Athens Banner, known as the organ o Gov. Howell Cobb, of Georgia, declares that the Union party is dissolved, and that the Democrats will adhere to their party nominations.

Qualifications for the Presidency.

It is no uncommon affair nowadays to hear a nense disparity between the pretensions of Winield Scott and Franklin Pierce, declare that he recognises so such thing in any man as a claim to recognises so such thing in any man as a claim to the suffrages of the people. Now that the Demo-cratic party have brought forward a candidate utterly without any sort of fitness for, or title to, the high office of President, we cannot blame the Democracy for endeavoring to make the people believe that a claim to their gratitude and affec-tion, based upon long and faithful service, is a humbug. As one step towards this preposterous loctrine, it is sought to be shown that no very igh qualifications are requisite in a President. Judge Madison, in his speech at the Democratic ratification meeting in this city, gave it as his opinion that very exalted intellectual stature was not a sine qua non in a Presidential candidate; and a Baltimore paper maintains, with a decent appearance of gravity, that mediocre attainments are best suited to all the important offices of the country. We propose briefly to consider these irst examine the peculiar fitness of mediocrity or the administration of government. [Richmond Whig.

At the Whig ratification meeting at Pittsburg, Penn., on Monday evening week, three soldiers, two of whom are Democrats, who had served with Gen. Scott in Mexico, made excellent speeches, and avowed their determination to vote for their old commander. At the ratification meeting in New York, Lieut, Brown, of the New York volunteers, who served in Mexico, made a speech, and said "he looked upon Gen. Scott as the chief who alone could lead to victory."

reduced prices, in order to close them out, as nearly as possible.

We shall offer many styles of Dress Goods at from 20 to 30 per cent. less than the regular prices, as, we are determined to sell them out by the middle of Adgust, when we purpose to take an inventory of our stock.

We have left on hand a considerable lot of Muslin Sleeves, Chemisets, Collars, Capes, &c., of the auction goods we advertised in the early part of the season, which we have assorted out and marked down at a very low figure, in order to run off the entire lot.

Ladies and all in want of goods in our line will find it greatly to their advantage to examine our stock and prices before purch-sing, as we adopt the pinciple of closing out summer goods at this season of the year, if at a loss, jv 3—dit W. M. SHUSTER & CO.

HALL'S SODA WATER

I sequal to the best manufactured in the District of Columbia, as thousands would willingly certify. His stand is on the south side of the Eastern Market-housefountsin, glasses, strups, and ice pure, fresh, and abundant; and he is always ready when called. "At ro-y move, at anity noon, or dowey eve," this is the refreshing drink for the temperate and healthy. Be sure to look for HALL'S STAND. It is easily found, and, "when found, make a note on it," as Captain Cuttle says.
